

A Word About Lost Wax Casting:

Our lights are cast by the precise lost wax casting process. This is the same method by which the finest jewelry and finest figural bronzes are made. Dating back thousands of years, it is an exacting process which takes many days for just one casting to be formed. A casting mold must be built up through several layers of ceramic slurry before the metal can be poured. The results are the greatest possible detail and the finest surface quality known. There are no finer castings on the market.
